

Calendar Report, Spring 2008
Terry Aitken

Since the price for goods and services have risen dramatically this winter, I recontacted the calendar publisher in Honk Kong.

The price per Calendar will be going up from $2.38 each to $2.50 each. This uses up my contingency fund within a few dollars.

At this point, we remain on budget barring unforeseen expenditures.

My goal is to get the Calendar into production before our NW bloom season this year.

Again, I will be using photo contest material interspersed with Aitken photos for subject diversity.
